Comba's Banear Opening of the Spring Scoron-The size of the establishment doubled—J. N. GENIN in announcing for Wednesday next, the 5th inst., the opining of a new and splendid assortment of apring goods in the various departments of his basars, would premise, for the information of the fashionable world and the public at large that his arrangements shroad for the present season are on a scale meete comprehensive than has ever yet been attempted.

During the past winter rate, been fortunate enough, through his readent agents in Paris and London, to secure, by special contracts with the leading manufacturers of fashionable costume in those cities, a constant supply of new styles in the ladies, 'children's, infants' and general fancy department, in advance of the importations arriving in the regular coarse of trade, and he will, therefore, be enabled to present all the changing phases of foreign fashion as they change abroad; so that his customers, instead of being furnished with the last novelties in vogue on the other side of the Atlantic, will be sure to obtain the then present modes, and may adopt them simultaneously with the beau monde of England and France. In thus increasing the attractions and advantages of the banaar, the preprietor has not lost sight of the important principle which has so far governed and regulated his business intercourse with the public. "Moderate prices" is still, as it has been heretofree, his motto, and it will be found by all who visit the bazaar, that clegance, novelty and the newest fashions are not inconsistent with a degree of chespuess that the world has too long then taught to believe is necessarily the index of inferiority.

tent with a degree of chespuess that the world has too long been taught to believe is necessarily the index of inferiority. The

is another feature to which it is proper to direct attention. A new and capacious window has been thrown out on the southern side of the main entrance, and the interior has been more than doubled in extent by the addition of another immense store. The entire length of the bazaar is now two hundred and sixty feet—the full depth of St. Nicholas Hotel—and it may be averred that it is the largest, as well as the most beautiful establishment of its class, one cither side of the Atlantic. There is now "ample room and verge enough" on a single floor for the ten departments—each in itself comprising the stock of a distinct business—embraced in this extensive concern. Ladies need no longer fear being inconveniently crowded by "the pressure from without," nor will they ever be obliged to wait their turn to be served, as was sometimes the case in the height of the season previous to the present arrangements being made. Another corps of clerks and salesmen has been added to the personnel of the bazaar, and visiters may depend upon prompt and courtous attention. The CHILDREN'S HEAD DRESS DEFARTMENT COMPRISES AND CHILDREN'S CLOTHING, embroidered and plain, more than lifty novel styles will be presented, suitable for boys of all lages, from five years old to sinteen. The assortment comprehends substantial school suits, as well as dress coatunes. Another Living Witness Testifies to the efficacy of Hobensack's worm syrep. I would ask careful perusal of the following, from all afflicted with disease:

Dr. J. M. Hobensack—I take pleasure while I inform you of the great efficacy of your syrap. Having been afflicted for five years I had wasted away to a mere skeleton; receiving no hencist from the numerous medicines used. I was induced by Jesse Roberts to try your worm sprup, as he informed me it had brought worms from him; also of Esquire A. Tomlinson. of Buchs county, with whom I was well acquainted. I then commenced taking your syrup; it brought large quantities of worms from me, and completely restored me to health. Since then I have enjoyed better health than I had for the last test years previous.—John Hart, Morehant, McCartersville, Bristol township, Philadelphia county.

Rheumatiam, Scrofula, &c.—Hyatt's Life balsam is the most certain remedy for these terrible discass. Whence Proceed the Lassitude, the Depression, the debility, the indifference to life, the instability, the continual feeling of lilness which it is impossible to deine or localize, so common, so hard to bear, and so little pitied by the robust and healthy? We answer, from the stomach and the nervous system, between which there exists the closest sympathy. Want of vital energy, sluggishnoss in the secretive organs, a general inertia of the system, is at the bottom of all the difficulty. To rouse the whole organization from the torpor, to imbue it with new life, activity and vigor, and to sustain it in that condition, there is no preparation comparable with Dr. Morse's Invigorating Klizir or Cordial. Other stimuli may excite the dormant physical energies for a time, but like the night flash of the lightning that leaves behind it a deeper gloom, the exhibition of these exhiterants is followed, after the first convulsive effect is ever, by a depression of body and mind more profound and paralyzing than ever. The remedy is literally worse than the disease. But the Ellist's has a dynamic influence. It not only creates a new condition of the physical organization, but perpetuates it. The animal spirits are not only cheered and elevated by its agency, but kept up to their new level without flagging. A vegetable compound, congenial to the system, it seems to act upon the contitution itself, and to revolutionize it. In chronic diseases of the nerves, the stomach, and the liver, its operation is all but miraculous. The Cordial is put up, highly concentrated, in pint bottles. Price three dollars per bottle, two for five dollars, six for twelve dollars, and the West Indice.
